Re: Expenditure Narrative for Title I Section 101
Reporting period: January 1, 2004 through December 31, 2004.

Dear Election Assistance Commissioners:

Beginning in 2003, the State of Alaska began taking the necessary steps required to be in full compliance with the Help America Vote Act of 2002. Alaska law was expanded to bring the State into compliance with HAVA requirements. The Division has established a toll-free access system; initialized Division of Motor Vehicles (DMV) requirements; hired new staff to manage HAVA; updated forms and training materials; designed and improved voter outreach and election worker training programs; and relocated a regional election office for improved access and election administration.

The State of Alaska's 2004 expenditures remain consistent with the activities described for permissible use of funds in HAVA section 101(b). The State's use of Title I funds has allowed the Division to progress towards the goals established in the State Plan initially developed in 2003. Funds from Title I were used to carry out the following activities in 2004.

Improvements to Election Administration & Meeting Requirements of Title III

Improving the Administration of Elections for Federal Office

The Division relocated the Southeast Regional Office, providing for better accessibility to voters and improving election administration. The new location provides improved parking for voters with disabilities; easier access for voters; additional storage for Touch Screen (TS) units and additional space for absentee voting, onsite election worker training and other election preparation activities.

Provisional Voting Toll-free Access

In 2004, the Division established a toll-free access system to provide voter information on whether a provisional ballot was counted and, if not counted, why the vote or a portion of the vote did not count.

The State continues to use its existing statewide Polling Place Locator. This toll-free number provides voter access to registration record, specific polling locations and other relevant information. The Polling Place Locator answered numerous calls in October, peaking with 3,492 calls on November 1 and 8,110 calls on November 2.

Division of Motor Vehicles (DMV) Requirements

The Division of Elections completed procedures to allow it to match identifying information provided by a first-time, by-mail registrant on his or her voter registration application to information maintained in the DMV database.

Training Election Officials, Poll Workers and Election Volunteers

Leading up to the 2004 General Election, the Division began "hub training" its election workers. The purpose of this training method is for the Division to more effectively train election workers closer to Election Day. As there are many rural polling places in Alaska, the Division sent the chairperson from each selected rural precinct to one larger, more "central" community where all the chairpersons were trained simultaneously. The chairperson then returned to their community and trained the election workers at their polling place. The Division was able to train more election workers closer to Election Day using the "hub training" method, and found this to be an effective means of outreach and training.

The Division has procedures established for conducting recounts on a statewide level, as well as State House and State Senate levels. In 2004, the Division conducted two recounts – one for a State House race and the other for the U.S. Senate race. This was the first time in Alaska history that a statewide recount was conducted with the Accu-Vote Optical Scan equipment, and there were no significant changes to the election results. The integrity of our election system was tested, and the State proved our Division, our election workers, our laws and procedures, and our voting equipment had earned Alaskans trust and confidence.

Accessible Voting Equipment

The Division used state matching funds to purchase 55 DREs. HAVA funds were used to purchase 45 additional TS units, bringing the statewide total to 100. In 2004 the Division held conferences for its employees in order to discuss the implementation and training of TS units in Alaska. All four regions of the State were represented by the four election supervisors that provided plans for implementation in their area.

ORIGINAL

In May 2004, the Legislature passed legislation (HB 459) regarding providing a voter verifiable paper trail for electronic voting machines for elections after 2004.

Although the Division originally intended to use the touch screens in a pilot project in the 2004 elections, because of concerns about the State's computer system and potential challenges to election results, it decided to delay their use until they are retrofitted with a voter verifiable paper record. The Division plans to incorporate the new requirements and complete the implementation by the 2006 deadline.

Administrative Complaint Procedures

The Division of Elections succeeded in developing administrative regulations to establish the required complaint procedure. These regulations constitute a new article 6 AAC 25.400-490 that is now a part of the Division's administrative regulations in Title 6, Chapter 25 of the Alaska Administrative Code. These regulations satisfy the requirements of HAVA section 402 by providing a uniform and nondiscriminatory complaint procedure.

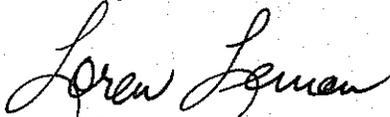

The Division established a toll-free hotline, which allows voters to report possible voting fraud and voting rights violations. The toll-free number was made available to voters in newspaper advertisements and Public Service Announcements during the 2004 election cycle.

Statewide Voter Registration System

The Division made improvements to the existing statewide voter registration database, VREMS, to comply with Title III requirements. These improvements have been made through programming contracts with State-contracted vendors or other State agencies.

The State's current statewide voter registration system is outdated, written in Natural language and is difficult to maintain. In 2004 Division staff attended election conferences and vendor shows to view voter registration system demonstrations in preparation for developing a Request for Proposal (RFP) that will be issued in early 2005. The Division will use Title II HAVA funds to replace the outdated system.

Sincerely,

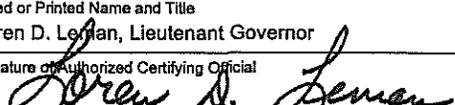

Loren Leman
Lieutenant Governor
